

M999-NEC – SAD, Safe / Arm Device

Sometimes electronic circuits can be unreliable. This protective shorting link was intended to prevent accidental triggering of the fuze of a torpedo. Once fired, a current flowing in a resistive element melts a wire, causing a spring-loaded plunger to release and cut a protective shorting jumper.