

Müller Metalix - X-Ray Tube

Very early high-power Metalix X-ray tube. This sample, complete with its crate, can be dated from the mid to the late twenties. The Philips Metalix glass-to-metal sealing process allowed the design of high-power X-ray sources, since the external anode could be easily cooled. The sample, build in Germany by Müller, comes from the collection of Peter den Boer.

